Beaverton Police are releasing details of another incident believed to be committed by the same suspect as the original sexual assault detailed below. An additional composite drawing was completed from that incident (attached). For details of the original incident see the original News Release at the bottom of this update.

On Thursday, November 17th at around 9:00pm, a subject knocked on a door in the 160th block of Schendel Ave. The female resident answered the door and the subject said he was new to the area and asked for directions. As the female resident was providing information the male subject exposed himself to her. The female resident slammed the door shut and the subject was not seen after that.

This incident is in close proximity to the sexual assault that occurred the following evening. The description of the suspect closely matches the description of the suspect from the sexual assault the following evening. The things said by the suspect are similar or identical to the things said by the suspect in the sexual assault the following evening. Detectives believe the suspect is the same in both instances.

The suspect in this incident is described as a clean shaven Hispanic male in his late teens or early 20’s, approximately 5’2” with a thin build, dark clothes, and a mole on his upper lip (see composite). He is also described as having a slight Hispanic accent.

Beaverton Police are asking the public to look at the new composite and updated suspect description. Anybody with information on the identity of the suspect is asked to call Beaverton Detectives at 503-629-0111.

On November 18th at 6:49 PM the Beaverton Police received a call of a robbery and assault that had just taken place in the area of 163rd and SW Estuary Drive (exact address withheld). The female victim reported that a male suspect used a ruse of asking for help

The victims injuries were not life threatening.

The victim described the suspect as a Hispanic male who was between the age of 15 to possibly early 20’s. The victim believed the suspect was most likely in his teens. The suspect was described as being approximately 5’6” with a light to medium build. He was wearing dark pants with a dark hooded sweatshirt with the hood pulled over his head. He was also wearing a baseball cap that had writing on the front.

The victim in this case is very distraught over this incident and does not want to speak with the media or be identified. In order to prevent revealing the identity of the victim, detectives are not elaborating on the type or extent of the physical injury to the victim or any other details regarding the attempted sexual assault.

While Detectives do not currently have a suspect identified, they have been working on this case since reported and are currently following several leads. The press release will be updated with a composite drawing of the suspect as soon as it is available.
The police are reminding the public to be wary of letting strangers into their homes. The police are also asking for any information that could assist detectives in identifying the suspect.
